WELCOME TO EDUCATION AND POLITICS - MARK EDWARDS Edwards Institute & Institute of Politics at UC Berkeley Education & Politics is a multimedia project made by students at the UCLA Graduate School of Education and Information Studies. Like college essay writers our study guide and course reviews, it is produced by UCLA students. It is about high school and college students' concerns about the future of American Democracy. In any mobile communication system, a user equipment, also known as mobile terminal or mobile user equipment (UE), needs to make a request to a base station for uplink scheduling, and a base station needs to send scheduling information to the user equipment for downlink scheduling. In Long Term Evolution (LTE) Release 11 (Rel-11), the user equipment is in the RRC idle mode when the user equipment does not have an uplink radio resource assignment and does not have radio resource control information, i.e. there is no PDCCH indicating the grants of the UE to uplink transmission. That is, the UE is "idle" when it is not transmitting anything. In order to conduct uplink scheduling for the idle UE, the scheduling request (SR) procedure is used. The SR procedure includes three processes: an SR-RRC Request; an SR-RRC Acknowledge; and an SR-RRC Rejection, as shown in FIG. 1. The SR-RRC Rejection is the most important process of the SR procedure. In the SR-RRC Rejection, the user equipment rejects uplink transmission. The uplink radio resource assignment (including a physical channel and resources) is valid only for a certain time period. During the time period, the user equipment cannot send uplink transmission. If the user equipment sends uplink transmission, the base station will send a corresponding response. The corresponding response includes a 648931e174

I'm not sure how to phrase this but how could I pass the output of a command in the command line to another command? For example One way is to just use copy and pipe the output of the first command to copy. In: copy "|cmd1|" Out: c:\dir1 c:\dir2 c:\dir3 But then I would need to redirect that to a file which I would not need. In: copy "|cmd1|" > "c:\copy.txt" Out: c:\copy.txt How to create a command like copy.txt using a command in a single line? A: use: copy "|cmd1|" "c:\copy.txt" If you want to use it like: copy.txt you can use another command: copy "|cmd1|" "c:\copy.txt" | tee "copy.txt" Q: How to use a subquery that returns the column names in a SELECT statement using PDO I have a PDO Statement looking like this: $stmt = $db->prepare('SELECT * FROM `table` WHERE `id`=:id'); $stmt->execute(array(':id' => $id)); Is there a way to use the columns in the subquery when I send it to PDO? Something like this? WHERE (`column1`, `column2`, `column3`,...) = (:id, :id, :id,...) ; My question is, how can I use a subquery that returns the column names in a SELECT statement using PDO? EDIT: The code I posted was the best I could come up with, although I would have preferred a solution where I can use php's array mapping function, but since that is not possible for me, I
